Background

On January 10, 2014, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) issued final regulations regarding home- and community-based settings (HCBS). The rule supports enhanced quality in HCBS programs, outlines person-centered planning practices, and reflects CMS's intent to ensure that individuals receiving services and supports under 1915(c) HCBS waivers, 1915(k) (Community First Choice), and 1915(i) State Plan HCBS Medicaid authorities have full access to the benefits of community living and are able to receive services in the most integrated setting.

The State of Vermont has been particularly progressive in pursuing a home- and community-based continuum of care that offers meaningful community integration, choice, and self-direction, and strives to promote health, wellness, and improved quality of life. In doing so over the years, the State has used many authorities available under the Medicaid State Plan's rehabilitation option, as well as former 1915(c) waivers and Medicaid Section 1115 Demonstration projects. Additionally, guidance and assurances for home- and community-based care in Vermont are codified in statute or placed in rule. As a result, the term "home and community based" is used in Vermont to represent a broad array of services and supports that may not be typical of 1915(c) populations and CMS rules in other states, but that have been authorized under its Section 1115 Demonstration.

As part of Vermont's Global Commitment to Health (GC) Section 1115 Demonstration amendment, effective January 30, 2015, CMS has asked Vermont to provide assurances that the State's Managed Long-Term Services and Supports (MLTSS) in the Choices for Care Program are in compliance with certain aspects of the HCBS rule, specifically those related to the setting requirement and person-centered approaches for service planning. Two specific Special Terms and Conditions (STC's) from the GC Section 1115 Demonstration are summarized below:

- Person-centered planning (i.e., the process, the service plan, and the review of the service plan) will be in compliance with the characteristics set out in 42 CFR 441.301 (c)(1)-(3) (STC #29)
- Compliance with the characteristics of home- and community-based settings in accordance with 42 CFR 441.301 (c)(4) for Choices for Care Services (i.e., those not found in the Vermont State Plan) (STC #32).

Because of Vermont's public managed care delivery system, the State is integrating person-centered planning and integrated community setting assurances into its Comprehensive Quality Strategy for all Specialized Programs. Regardless of the setting type that beneficiaries choose, Vermont's values are in alignment with the Federal HCBS values. As such, at its discretion and over time, the State's Comprehensive Quality strategy will review the rules and guidance supporting all Special Health Need Populations served under the Demonstration and services provided in community settings authorized under the State Plan and the Global Commitment Demonstration. This report focuses on the Choices for Care Program.

HCBS Institutional Level of Care for Eligibility and Enrollment

Persons may become eligible for participation in the Choices for Care (CFC) Long-Term Care program by meeting Medicaid Long-Term Care eligibility rules, 1915(c) institutional eligibility rules, GC Demonstration population rules, and by also meeting clinical criteria for High, Highest, or Moderate Needs services. Persons designated as High or Highest Needs must meet nursing facility level of care, and persons with Moderate Needs are at risk for nursing home level of care. Persons with Moderate Needs are eligible for a limited benefit package to assist them in remaining in their home. Ninety-eight percent of CFC consumers meet Medicaid Aged, Blind, or Disabled (ABD) eligibility rules and are in the High or Highest Needs Group (i.e., meeting a nursing facility level of care).

Program Settings and Services

In the CFC program consumers have equal access to an array of traditional State Plan services, including Private Non-Medical Institution Services (PNMI), inpatient, skilled nursing, home-based, and other rehabilitative service options. The final service package is based on consumer choice, individualized planning, medical necessity (including level-of-care determinations), and medical appropriateness; thus, individual plans may include institutional, home-based, and other rehabilitative-based services as part of their person-centered planning process.

The majority of Choices for Care services are provided to participants in their homes. However, persons may also choose to reside in one of the following out-of-home setting types:

Adult Family Care (AFC) – A 24-hour, home-based, shared living arrangement providing care for no more than two persons unrelated to the provider. Adult Family Care homes must meet DAIL safety and accessibility standards prior to participant placement, with inspections every three years. Each AFC home maintains a contract with a Host Agency responsible for quality oversight and case management services on behalf of the participant. An Adult Family Care Coordinator from the host agency assists the home provider and participants in creating a person-centered care plan and live-in agreement. Home providers do not serve as case managers or guardians for persons in their care.

Enhanced Residential Care (ERC) – Residential Care Homes in Vermont are licensed to provide room, board, and personal care to three or more residents unrelated to the provider. CFC ERC services involve a daily package of services provided to individuals residing in an approved, Vermont Licensed Level III Residential Care Home (RCH) or Assisted Living Residence (ALR). All CFC ERC providers must also be enrolled as Medicaid Assistive Community Care Service (ACCS) providers and receive a Medicaid payment for Assistive Community Care Services (i.e., private non-medical institution), as well as an enhanced residential care payment for services to CFC participants. Prior to participation in the CFC ERC program, providers must request a variance of licensing standards that restrict residential admissions to persons who do not meet Nursing Facility level of care. A summary of the State Plan and Choices for Care authorities and payment types are provided on Table 1 on the following page.

Nursing Facility (NF) – 24-hour nursing care and supervision provided by a VT Licensed Nursing Facility.

Medicaid Recipient	Optional	Self or ACCS	RCH and ALR Licensing Regulations including ACCS enrollment

In addition to these residential arrangements, CFC participants who are residing in their own homes or in an Adult Family Care setting may also receive Day Health Rehabilitation from a State-Certified Adult Day Service provider. Day Health Rehabilitation is a State Plan service and is defined below.

Day Health Rehabilitation: Services provided at a Day Health Rehabilitation Center are health assessment and screening, health monitoring and education, nursing, personal care, physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, social work, and nutrition counseling/services.

Table 2 below shows the service array available to Choices for Care participants and their coverage authority.

Due to the nature of Vermont's Medicaid State Plan, the GC STCs, and Medicaid Managed Care rules, expenditures for the full continuum of service (home based, shared living, enhanced residential, and nursing facility care), commensurate with participant needs and choice, are allowable under Vermont's Section 1115 Demonstration.

Policy Overview

The Choices for Care program has a variety of written materials associated with its operations. These materials range from APA-promulgated rule and licensing standards to operations manuals, provider certification standards, audit tools, and training guides. One document, the DAIL Case Management Action Plan Guide is currently not in use, it was reviewed to assess its applicability and need for revision. The following documents were reviewed as part of this project:

- Choices for Care 1115 Long-Term Care Medicaid Waiver Regulations (February 2009)
- Choices for Care Long-Term Care Medicaid Program Manual (August 2013 Revised)
- DAIL Revised Case Management Standards Certification Procedures (June 2009)
- DAIL Case Management Action Plan Guide (Inactive and under consideration for revision)
- Residential Care Home Licensing Regulations (October 3, 2000)
- Assisted Living Licensing Regulations (March 15, 2004)
- Adult Family Care Training Materials (September 1, 2013)
- Adult Family Care Sample Live-In Agreement Template
- Adult Family Care Participant Rights
- Standards for Adult Day Services in Vermont (Effective March 1, 2012).

Appendix A and B provide a more detailed crosswalk of Vermont policy documents to the federal HCBS rules. Elements responsive to federal rules were scored using the following categories:

Alignment: State policy documents show alignment with federal rules.

Partial: State policy documents show general alignment with federal rules, but lack specificity.

Silent: State policy documents do not mention specific terms contemplated in federal rule.

Non-Comply: State policy documents are in conflict with the terms contemplated in federal rule.

Brief summaries of Adult Family Care and Enhanced Residential Care policies are provided below.

Adult Family Care: Choices for Care materials for Adult Family Care state that the goal is to provide individualized supports in an environment that is safe, family oriented, and designed to support autonomy and maximize independence and dignity. The home provider is expected to ensure that the environment promotes a positive domestic experience and to assist the person in realizing their maximum potential for independence.

The Adult Family Care Participants' rights agreements include stipulations that the live-in agreement must address such concerns as, but not limited to: visitation, diet/food, and access to activities in the community. All parts of the agreement must be based on the person's desires and the personcentered plan, and be approved by the participant or his or her legal representative in a written live-in agreement.

DAIL provides a sample agreement; the household arrangement section focuses on whether each identified physical space (bedroom, bathroom, kitchen, living room, and other space) is shared or private. The template includes negotiated risk, conditions regarding any termination of the agreement, room and board, and acknowledgments of Participants' Rights. Other considerations are noted in a free-form text box at the end, identified as "Other." Private or semi-private accommodations are agreed to by each specific arrangement and noted in the live-in agreement. No more than two persons needing care may reside in a single Adult Family Care setting. AFC home providers do not serve as case managers or control participants' finances or health decisions.

Enhanced Residential Care: CFC ERC services may be provided in an Assisted Living Residence or a Residential Care Home-Level III. These Choices for Care settings are governed by three sets of regulations (see Table 1 above), and all serve the general public as well as Medicaid and Choices for Care enrolled participants. Residential Care Home and Assisted Living Licensing Regulations address choices, physical accessibility, individual rights to privacy, and control. Licensing regulations also indicate that a home must respect the individuality of its residents and promote maximum independence. Written agreements are required for room and board, negotiated risk contracts, and the agreed-upon service options. The CFC Universal Provider Qualifications and Standards listed in the CFC Long-Term Care Medicaid Manual require, among other things, that all CFC providers encourage and assist participants to direct as much of their care as possible and that they maintain safeguards and procedures to address potential conflicts of interest.

Assisted Living Residences provide specificity related to lockable doors, private units, and lease agreements. Residential Care Homes, Level III Regulations provide overarching values related to privacy, dignity, and independence. These regulations allow for providers to structure and define visiting hours, meal plans, and daily social/recreational routines within the parameters outlined in regulation. Residential Care Home regulations do not specify whether a resident's room must be lockable.

In addition to examples of autonomy and privacy found in the federal rule, Vermont Residential Licensing Rules provide that residents also have a right to:

- communicate privately;
- receive and send unopened mail;
- have access to a phone;
- refuse care (to the extent allowed by law);
- refuse visitors; and
- leave the residence at any time and be away for more than 24 hours.

Persons in ERC settings are receiving an all-inclusive package of services and do not receive case management services from an outside agency. Persons who choose to receive services in an ERC setting are also by default agreeing to potential limitations in: visiting hours, transportation, independent access to food or meal preparation, and the timing and type of social recreational options. Participant choice of facility may also include Residential Care settings that are located on community hospital or private nursing facility grounds.

Summary and Options for Next Steps

Choices for Care statutory and regulatory framework appears to substantially align with the values in the federal framework and requires many of the same safeguards. All residential arrangements in the Choices for Care program, including Adult Family Care, must be commensurate with assessment findings, individualized long-term service and support goals, consumer abilities and desires, and meaningful choice per Choices for Care regulations. However, specific DAIL guidelines, checklists, model agreements, and quality oversight tools to ensure that providers are using best practices could provide more detailed guidance. For example, Choices for Care regulations and DAIL Case Management Standards require person-centered planning; however, guidelines and training tools do not describe what that planning entails or offer specific steps or checklists that provide examples of person-centered planning practices or practices that are not acceptable.

DAIL licensing and certification activities include a review to determine whether various standards are being met, but may not include quality or provider’s performance data related to how well the standards are implemented. Along these lines, the Adult Family Care standards indicate that live-in agreements and care plans should address all aspects of the participant/provider agreement with respect to visitors, privacy, community access, and diet and nutrition; however, DAIL’s sample template largely deals with physical space, risk, lease, and room and board payments. Similarly, the Adult Family Care Service Authorization form provides the service type, duration, and rates, but does not provide a summary overview of care plan goals, objectives, or agreed-upon modifications.

A preliminary list of options for enhancing quality oversight and providing more specific and direct guidance related to State and federal values and rules is provided in Table 3 below. This list should not be considered exhaustive; more extensive stakeholder engagement may yield additional opportunities for ongoing quality assessment and improvement.
